

Reverend Anthony Stewart's Bio

Anthony Stewart is a social studies teacher in Ann Arbor Public Schools. He has been teaching African American History at Huron High school for the past 16 years. He received his Masters in the Art of Teaching from Wayne State University in 2004. He received his bachelor's Degree in Print Journalism from Howard University in 1991.

Anthony has also served as a mediator for Washtenaw County Dispute Resolution Center, he assisted individuals, groups, and business disputants in resolving their disagreements and reaching out of court settlements.

Reverend Anthony is a unity minister and believes that as human beings we continue to grow. When we consciously and spiritually continue to better ourselves as individuals we create a better society. He believes in the ideas of a true American Democracy and sees us progressing to that realization.

He has two great children, Lee Stewart and Anthony Stewart and a wonderful wife and partner, Karen Stewart.